Originals! Black Women Breaking Barriers

Jessie Carney Smith, Ph.D.

Honoring and celebrating hundreds of America's most inspiring women, Originals! supplies a rich record of progress in America from the humble accomplishments in workplaces or the incremental changes in small-town governments to the historic civil rights movers and renowned politicians. From the flight attendant who broke the color barrier to Stacey Abrams's fight for the voting rights of people of color, each is momentous in its own way. Among the over 1,000 included trailblazers are • Amanda Gorman, inaugural poet • Amber Ruffin, writer for Late Night with Seth Meyers • Juanita Hall, Tony Award winner • Eileen Jackson Southern, first Black, female, tenured professor at Harvard • Sarah Boone, patent recipient for her ironing board invention • Patricia Roberts Harris, ambassador to Luxembourg • Shirley Anita St. Hill Chisholm, elected to the House of Representatives

• Kayla Freeman, pilot in the Alabama National Guard • Joann M. Jacobs, firefighter in New York City • Tyra Banks, first African American Sports Illustrated cover model • Martesha Johnson, Metropolitan Chief Public Defender in Nashville, Tennessee • Alexa Irene Canady, first Black woman neurosurgeon in the United States • Venus (Ebony Starr) Williams, top-ranked Women's Tennis Association player — and many more awe-inspiring accomplishments by amazing heroines!

Jessie Carney Smith, Ph.D., distinguished author and scholar, has devoted much of her research to the history and achievements of African American people. She is librarian emerita and the former dean of the Fisk University Library. Among Dr. Smith's numerous awards are the National Women's Book Association's Award and the Candace Award for excellence in education.
